The text «Martin Luther inspires and stimulates contradictions» continues the second part of the article based on the report read 11. April 2017 in Tschoboskary and published in the previous volume of the almanac. The author raises such questions as the Luther's attitude to the new picture of the universe (of Copernicus), the reformer's approach to the relation between Jews and Christians and his view on the Muslims. The author insists on careful historical understanding of Luther's positions, especially then they are far from the modern one. In the Jewish question, Luther used to be very critical and severe, but the author emphasizes that no government followed specifically his suggestions and ideas. As to the Luther's approach to the Muslims, in the author's opinion, the only attractive theme is his demand to understand the other religion correctly. It's clear that for the contemporary ethnical situation in Europe make necessary for Lutherans to re-estimate Luther. The author comes to conclusion that the only idea that should be taken today is Luther's understanding of the Revelation as made by Jesus of Nazareth, the Christ.
